FRANK'S APPEAL TO U. S. COURT READY

Next Step Will Be Certificate of Writ of Georgia Federal Court in Habeas Corpus Proceedings.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Justice Lamar's approval of an appeal bond in the case of Leo M. Frank completed yesterday the formality of the appeal to the Supreme Court in so far as Justice Lamar is concerned. The bond assures payment of costs in the event that Frank loses.

The next step will be the docketing of the appeal. That cannot be done until the clerk of the Georgia Federal court, in which the habeas corpus proceeding originated, certifies a record to the Supreme Court.

COTTON CROP WAS VERY EXPENSIVE

One Farmer Produces the Figures to Show That Cotton Growing Is Unprofitable.

I want to say amen to G. R. Hearn's article on what the South needs. He speaks my sentiment. There is one thing he left out and that is we should be as wise as the people of the North, where they have shorter seasons for making crops than we have (and they grow no cotton, either). We look to the North for money and financial backing. As a rule, they are prosperous people and if they can get along without growing cotton all the time it seems to me that we could get along one year at least without it.

For my part, I know I can. I have grown as high as fifteen different products this year and nothing has paid me less than cotton has. Then why should I continue to grow it? Not me.

One of these products that I grew was Nancy Hall sweet potatoes, which will make in the black land district from 100 to 200 bushels per acre and will sell at any and all times at from 50 cents to $1 per bushel.

I planted ten acres in cotton this year and it made six bales. I pay money rent, putting the land at $5 per acre.

Rent	$50.00
Melane seed, about 6 bushels	11.40
Bedding land	4.50
Planting seed	3.00
Planting, first time	3.00
Hoeling, first time	10.00
Planting, second time	3.00
Hoeling, second time	4.00
Planting (big sweep), last time	3.00
Picking, at 65c per 100	54.50
	$148.40

I sold enough seed to pay the ginning and have on hand the balance of seed and also the cotton. I will not sell it at present prices. I plow with one-horse plow all the time in cultivating.

I will plant onions on this ten acres next year, 1915, and follow them with June corn. Will plant corn about July 1; that will give it plenty of time to mature before frost.—R. L. Jackson of Collin County in Farm and Ranch.

This is the spot where I am mortal.—Schiller.
